SUMMARY

I am a product-focused software engineer specializing in full-stack architecture, performance optimization, and scalable web applications. Alongside my computer engineering studies, I operate as an independent technical lead for e-commerce brands and early-stage startups, taking full ownership of end-to-end product development. From architecting headless frontends with Next.js and Astro to deploying robust custom CMS backends and managing self-hosted VPS infrastructure, I am driven by a passion for delivering seamless, production-ready digital experiences.
